→ PLOT: Kaoru and Kyoya meet outside. He confesses he received from Aruhi wedding invites in person. Kyoya received them from Tamaki. He hasn't told Hikaru yet.

This hasn't happened in years, but he's hesitating to tell Hikaru, doesn't know how to break of the news. He wants to protect his brother and not tell him.

Kyoya, same as always, ~~ad~~ doesn't chastise him. He just ~~stays~~ plays out the scenarios that could happen from Hikaru's decision. Doesn't make one or the other sound evil.

Just makes Kaoru face the reality that his choice will bring.

Kaoru still focuses on BAD and GOOD, which is just anxiety inducing. Kyoya zooms out to action, consequences, reality.

That leads into the subject of Kyoya's questionable morals. How he doesn't focus on morals and just seeks results. How is he okay with it? It works for him because he continuously benefits, and the people he cares about know HIM. Kaoru is leur moralité est différente, they both play the villain and hurt themselves to achieve their vision. Kyoya has accepted his lack of morality, but Kaoru struggles still.

NEW DOUJIN... OURAN?
KAORU x KYOGA, BIEN SÛR!

They are both selfish and hypocritical in their ways.

Through talking together, Kaoru realizes the extent of the damage he's causing. Kyoya advises him to either accept it and continue, or to stop now and apologize to Hikaru.

touched to be part of that selection. Kyoya talks about how similar they can be in their selfishness. Says if he doesn't want Hikaru to attend, he can be Kyoya's +1. He is obviously flirting. Kaoru takes it as a joke, asks why on earth he would do that. Kyoya informs him Tamaki would be devastated if Kyoya doesn't bring a date, but since he's a dog he would growl at any person he doesn't approve of lol. Kaoru asks if Tamaki has been introducing him to people. He has been indeed but ~~the~~ Aruhi scolded him.

Kyoya is somewhat disappointed that now that Aruhi found love, they look at Kyoya with very well hidden pity. Kaoru relates somewhat. He mostly feels guilt over the profound trust Aruhi has in him. So they both want to avoid them these days.

Kyo asks if Kaoru made his choice abt the invites. Kaoru says he knows the right things to do. Kyoya proposes to be his date for the day and sway him to lie to his brother.

Kyoya takes him shopping, it's crowded and he holds Kaoru's hand the whole time. He makes Kaoru try different ties for the wedding, jokes abt Kaoru changing his hair color again and fucking up the tie choice. Then they book a karaoke booth and drink. Kaoru praises his boyfried roleplay and talks about how lucky Kyoya's future girlfriend will be.

Kyoya says he doesn't have to worry about succession since he won't be taking over the family business. Kaoru isn't confident he catches the ~~innuendo~~ innuendo. Kyoya makes a move on him, says he isn't interested in making a girlfriend lucky. Kaoru is kinda frozen.

Kyoya tells him he doesn't do things he won't regret, and to stop him now if Kaoru has doubts. They make out.

After sometime, Kyoya asks him if he's taking up the offer of being a +1. Kaoru refuses, he just won't bring a +1, and Kyoya won't either, since there will be way too many people at the damn wedding anyway.

OM EDETTO!!

→ by this point they are tipsy, Kaoru only sings, Kyo watches and claps
